Learning Objectives and Goals:

1. To understand the series of national cluster-randomized trials in surgery conducted over the last several years to address duty hours, quality improvement and well-being in the learning environment.
2. Review the findings from the trials and provide attendees with actionable steps to improve the culture of graduate medical education.
3. To develop an understanding that advancing health equity requires a holistic approach that integrates well-being and inclusion. Prioritizing these elements creates a more equitable healthcare system, leading to improved health outcomes for everyone.
